

KATIE PATERSON

Katie Paterson is regarded as an artist working at the forefront of her generation. Collaborating with leading scientists and researchers across the world, Katie Paterson's poetic and conceptual projects consider our place on Earth in the context of geological time and change. Her artworks make use of sophisticated technologies and specialist expertise to stage intimate, poetic and philosophical engagements between people and their natural environment. Combining a Romantic sensibility with a research-based approach and coolly minimalist presentation, her work collapses the distance between the viewer and the most distant edges of time and the cosmos. Describing Paterson's work, museum curator Erica Burton explains the way she "engages with the landscape, as a physical entity and as an idea. Drawing on our experience of the natural world, she creates an expanded sense of reality beyond the purely visible".

Paterson graduated from the Slade School of Fine Art in 2007. In January 2014, she was the recipient of the South Bank Sky Arts Award for Visual Art. In 2015 Paterson's artwork Campo del Cielo, Field of the Sky (2014) was shortlisted for 46th Prix International d'Art Contemporain; awarded every three years for a recent work by an artist at the forefront of their practice. Paterson launched her 100-year artwork, Future Library in 2014 with Margaret Atwood, David Mitchell, Sjón, Elif Shafak, Han Kang, Ocean Vuong, Karl Ove Knausgård and Tsitsi Dangarembga all announced as contributing authors. A major new public artwork, Hollow, for the Department of Life Sciences, University of Bristol, was unveiled in May 2016. Recent solo exhibitions include A place that exists only in moonlight at Turner Contemporary, Margate (2019); Ideas at Ingleby Gallery (2014) - presented as part of GENERATION, a nationwide programme of exhibitions - ;Frac Franche-Comté, Besançon (2015); The Lowry, Manchester (2016) and CentrePasquArt, Beil, Switzerland (2016). Katie Paterson's work is held in public collections internationally including the Guggenheim Museum, New York, USA; Art Gallery of New South Wales, Sydney, Australia and Frac Franche-Comté, France.

In 2019 The Scottish National Gallery of Modern Art presented the first major, public institution survey of Paterson's work in Scotland. In 2021 it was announced that the artist, in collaboration with Zeller & Moye, will be commissioned to make a new public sculpture for Apple Park, California. The installation, titled Mirage, will be created from cylinders of pure cast glass, made of sand collected from deserts across the Earth and will be installed in 2022.
